Friends for Miller reports over $11,000 raised through end of 2009

Winona, Minn.- The campaign of Jeremy Miller, Republican candidate for Minnesota State Senate, filed a campaign finance report detailing over $11,000 in contributions received from more than 115 individual donors in the last seven months.

“In this tough economy, we raised over 85% of campaign funds inside the district, with zero dollars coming from lobbyists,” said Angela McGowan, Miller’s campaign manager. “Jeremy Miller’s dedication to reforming Minnesota’s politics has inspired people to donate in a difficult economy.”

“I am thankful for the gifts of time, talent, and monetary contributions donated to my campaign from people across southeastern Minnesota,” said Jeremy Miller. “Thanks to people’s contributions, we continue to build the resources needed to get our campaign message across southeastern Minnesota.”

Miller announced his candidacy in May. “Jeremy Miller has the experience, energy, and integrity to best serve the people of southeastern Minnesota,” said McGowan. “With the continued support of District 31 residents, we’re confident Jeremy Miller will secure the Republican endorsement and be successful in the general election.”
